SWANSON ORATOR AT VIEW PICNIC

Junior Senator Addresses Machinists' Unions From Four Cities.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Norfolk, Va., July 19 .-- An immense crow of excursionists from Richmond, Norfolk, Newport News and Portsmouth heard Senator Claude A. Swanson address the Machinists' Unions of the four cities at Ocean View to-day.

Senator Swanson, who says he never forgets the "folks at home," made a special trip to the View to address the machinists, who held a reunion-picnic at the resort to-day. The day was an ideal one, but a thunderstorm late this afternoon interfered slightly with the program of sports and drove many to shelter shelter. Swanson's address was desenator Swanson's address was devoted mainly to the things he thought best for the workingman. He said he would always try to bring government work to Virginia, and especially the Norfolk Navy-Yard.

Senator Swanson was entertained at luncheon at the Ocean View Hotel, and left this afteronon for Washington.
Two extra life guards were on duty to-day to look after the large crowd in bathing. A majority of the bathers were from Richmond.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

New York, July 19.- The week's reival in the stock market had its main incentive in the easing of the money market in London. It is a general financial opinion that the extent and duration of the stock market recovery will depend for the present on the permanence of the relief from money strain indicated by the course of the week's discount market in London. Some of the factors which brought relief are obviously temporary. As doubt remains over the more permanent effect, speculative hesitation continues.

remains over the more permanent effect, speculative hesitation continues.

The satisfaction of the Berlin demand for gold marks the apparent completion of the work of recuperation in which the imperial Bank of Germany has been engaged, and allows the diversion of arriving South African gold into the Bank of England's supply. The Bank of France continues its on New York's gold supply. The stage of restriction of new credits, still inforce is only slightly modified by the new turns of affairs in London. The future money markets had a more than usually direct bearing not only on the action of the New York stock market, but on the interest rates to be paid at interior markets for holding and moving the crops and for mercantile uses. How far the iron and steel trade is to expand beyond the upkeep requirements, to which it is at present confined, depends on the extent of the release of funds for new enterprises in the opinion of trade authorities. That condition is an index of the whole industrial and commercial situation.

The stock market, previous to the aid-week revival, showed a series of ays rarely paralleled for consecutive fullness. The agreement to arbitrate he Eastern railroads' dispute helped he revival and threat of a hitch helped to check it. The imposing showing of the country's foreign trade for the fascal year was a helpful factor. However, weather in the corn belt was not liked, as a prosperous harvest is much relied on to clear the financial horizon.

Complaint is Dismissed.

Washington, July 19.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has denied the reparation and dismissed the complaint of George A. Blackmore, who is engaged in the foundry business at Hampton, Va., under the name of Hampton Manufacturing Company. By petition, filed December 26, 1912, he assails as unreasonable the charges collected by defendants for the transfer in transit, at New York, of cortain less-than-carload shipments of iron columns from Hampton, Va., to Kings Park, Long Island, N. Y., and from Kings Park to Hampton on return movements. Reparation was asked in the sum of $18.65. The complaint was against the Old Dominion Steamship Company.

How to Live 100 Years

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Bristol, Va., July 19.—It isn't everybody who can take the advice of Thomas Duncan on how to live 100 years. However, it will not hurt to give this advice.

Duncan, who recently celebrated the one hundredth and fifth anniversary of his birth, lives in a mountain cove near Henrietta, N. C. He has spent his life there in the wilds of the mountains, and in a cabin that is sufficiently open to admit of the free passage of the mountain air. There, with birds, insects, bears and rattlesnakes for his com-
